

Sinclair threatens democracy. By using public airways in order to present a biased political agenda, this doesn't reflect the interests of all Americans. Sinclair uses public airways for free, so how is it possible to air a program that is so one-sided to the Republican Right and clearly doesn't reflect the interests of all Americans. This is wrong and unjust, especially before a Presidential Election that will change America for the next 4 years. The only way to justify this action, is to ban Sinclair from using public airways to present biased political views, or to allow Democrats and other Independents the right to air documentaries such as "Going Up River." In a democracy, on the brink of election, voters should not be swayed by conglomerate corporations with political agendas outside the interests of the average American.
